IMJSR

The International Medical Journal of Students' Research (IMJSR) is one of the unique and advanced international journals solely made by and for medical students, whose role in the medical profession is now becoming more and more significant. What makes IMJSR different from the rest is that it encompasses all the fields of the profession without diluting its focus on any one. To achieve this will not launch a single journal but a kaleidoscope of journals pertaining to each and every branch of medicine though the very first issue will be single and common.

We provide a platform for medical students to publish their scientific articles as well as read specialized articles written by experienced practitioners and acclaimed researchers. Besides publishing articles IMJSR aims to assist students in conducting research, right from clearing the concepts of research methodology to getting it published. For this a RESEARCH BOARD has been made for the purpose of Research Education.

The journal is a quarterly scientific magazine and follows the international guidelines for journals and scientific publication.

Articles based on medical science, medical biotechnology and ethics, will be considered for publication in IMJSR.

To submit or discuss an article that you are working on, feel free to contact the members of editorial board at editor@imjsr.com.

The journal publishes high quality editorials, reviews, original research articles, case reports, meeting proceedings and short reports.
